Forum: Bons plans Vacances

San Francisco 49ers quarterback Alex Smith threw a 14-yard touchdown pass within the second quarter of Sunday's 24-24 tie against the Rams while playing with blurred vision before coming out using a concussion. Coach Jim Harbaugh stated Monday that Smith connected with Michael Crabtree six plays immediately after he began encountering blurred vision on a 1-yard keeper early in the second quarter. Smith, a former Utah Ute, scrambled to his left and began to slide just before turning when Dunbar got him within the back on the neck with 1:ten left in the very first quarter. People always wearNFL Jerseysto show their faithful in their team and the sports.He briefly grabbed his face mask and grimaced but stayed in the game. Earlier, he had taken a vicious hit from St. Louis linebacker Jo-Lonn Dunbar. Harbaugh said the QB enhanced overnight and would see a neurologist later Monday. His status is unclear for subsequent Monday evening's game against the Bears."He said he had the blurred vision just after the quarterback sneak," Harbaugh mentioned. "There's no telling. Did that earlier hit contribute? I don't know. I don't know Alex knows for positive, either." Do you want to buy the wholesale NFL football Jerseys ? You may get surprise for the price. Second-year backup Colin Kaepernick entered for the next offensive series. "Yeah, that's something, you don't want him around with blurred vision," Harbaugh mentioned. "We talked about it. What he expressed was he came up from the sneak and he had blurred vision and he felt that it would go away. He came more than for the sideline and sat down and felt it would go away and it didn't."Harbaugh expressed concern at the thought the 28-year-old Smith played by some concussion symptoms.

Consultez la source sur Univoyage.com: San Francisco Alex Smith threw TD pass