"The European Commission is currently developing one of the centrepieces of the Single European Sky (SES) legislation: the legal framework concerning the performance and charging scheme for air navigation services for the period of 2015-2019.

Considering the previous under-performance of the Member States, it is unacceptable that due to their pressure the Commission's new proposals are not only lacking ambition, but will also prevent the realisation of the high level goals for SES by a considerable margin."
